

Welcome to our blog

Pennsylvania workers' compensation law is always evolving, through statutory changes and judicial and administrative changes. These changes directly affect the rights and claims of injured workers, sometimes favorably and sometimes to their detriment. The law firm of Martin Law strives to stay on top of these changes so that we can protect our clients' benefits and legal rights.

We provide this Blog as a source for discussion and current information about all facets of workers' compensation, particularly as it applies to employees in Pennsylvania. You will find topical analysis of recent Bureau of Workers Compensation (BWC) and Workers Compensation Appeal Board (WCAB) rulings, and other news accounts or postings by our attorneys about relevant issues in work injury law.

Martin Law represents only injured workers. We welcome your feedback about the developments in our Blog posts, and in our periodic updates we will try to reflect your input and the work injury issues most important to you. We also invite any person having problems with a current workers' comp claim or seeking a lawyer to file a claim to contact us, at 888-722-6671 or 215-587-8400 or by e-mail. We provide a free consultation, serving the Philadelphia metro area and southeast Pennsylvania.